

GRADUATE SCHOOL

It's tough on relationships, finances and health. It can even be tough on your faith. It's easy to find yourself isolated and alone but it's important to connect.

Engage with a community that understands your unique pressures and cultivate a spiritual life that holds up under stress and grows stronger along the way. Your future Kingdom impact depends on it.

MAKE SPIRITUAL GROWTH A PRIORITY

Many things compete for your time in grad school. The pressure is unyielding. Most graduate students let the demands of their degree program take precedence over everything else.

Ironically, when you choose to put God first, everything else that's important finds its proper place. That's what Jesus meant when He said to seek first the Kingdom of God (Matthew 6:33).

It's no accident that spiritual health fosters greater success in every area of your life. You'll notice its impact on your studies, relationships and even your professional career.

HOW DO YOU DO IT?

It starts inside. Strengthen your personal convictions, develop a rock solid relationship with Jesus and nourish your inner life.

Then, look around. Find others like yourself who want to follow Christ. Break through the cloud of cynicism that surrounds faith in the academy.

You need to realize that God has placed you here for a divine purpose to impact your unique sphere of influence. Fortify your faith, face antagonism with integrity and reason, dialog with your peers and confound them with kindness.

WHAT CAN I EXPECT?

Each Fellowship is dedicated to meeting consistently to study the Bible and relevant books by Christian scholars - books like C.S. Lewis' Mere Christianity or J.P. Moreland's Love Your God With All Your Mind.

We discuss. We pray. We grow. And we reach beyond ourselves to the broader graduate community through friendships, lectures, forums and expert debates.

You'll discover that when you involve yourself with eternal things, your perspective on the immediate challenges of life begins to change. And that's a really good thing when you're in the throes of grad school!

WHY GET INVOLVED?

As a part of the Christian Grads Fellowship, you'll have access to leaders and mentors committed to coaching you in the faith and supporting you throughout your academic career.

Take advantage of valuable leadership development opportunities and skill-building resources.

You'll also find support from our wider network of services from Grad Resources like The National Grad Crisis line, our library of online articles, helpful seminars and graduate school survival tips.
